DESCRIPTION AND PURPOSE OF CHANGE:

Calibration Labels will no longer indicate the calibration due date. This is being done after analysis showed that, even with the worst rate of degradation, our circuits would remain within limits for a period of over 20 years. Our revised recommended recalibration cycle is three (3) years. However, it is not mandatory to follow this recommendation, and the users can determine the recalibration cycle at their own discretion. This change has no impact on product operation, interoperability, or quality.

DETAIL OF CHANGE:

Calibration Labels will no longer indicate the due date.
